Material Selection Properties

Material	Properties	Chemical Resistance	Temperature Range
PVC-U Unplasticised Polyvinyl Chloride	Excellent chemical resistance and dielectric properties, good tensile, flexural and mechanical strength, low moisture absorption, excellent dimensional stability and good flammability characteristics.	Resistant to most solutions of acids, alkalis, salts and organic compounds miscible with water. Not resistant to solvents, aromatics and some chlorinated hydrocarbons. Not recommended for compressed air or gasses.	0°C to 60°C
PVC-C Post-chlorinated Polyvinyl Chloride	Excellent chemical resistance, good mechanical strength and rigidity, high heat resistance excellent flammability properties (self-extinguishing), low thermal conductivity and good abrasion resistance.	Resistant to many acids, bases, salts paraffinic hydrocarbons, halogens and alcohols. Not resistant to solvents, aromatics and some chlorinated hydrocarbons.	5°C to 95°C
ABS Acrylonitrile Butadiene Styrene	Stable over a wide range of temperatures, especially good in cold environments, high impact strength and ductility, good chemical resistance and rigidity.	Mostly resistant to solutions of salts, inorganic acids and alkalines. Not resistant to solvents, aromatics and some chlorinated hydrocarbons.	-40°C to 70°C
Polypropylene	Has excellent chemical resistance, high heat resistance and good mechanical strength. Lightweight, good insulating properties, excellent dielectric strength but poor UV resistance and low impact strength at freezing temperatures.	Very good resistance to chemicals and solvents. Good with aqueous, salts, acids or alkaline solutions. Can be attacked by halogens, some acids and oxidizing agents, and by aromatic and chlorinated hydrocarbons at high temperatures.	0°C to 80°C
Polyethylene	Tough, excellent chemical resistance and electrical properties, low coefficient of friction, lightweight, very low moisture absorption, excellent flexibility and good in cold environments.	Good resistance to acids and caustic substances. Resistant to organic and inorganic solvents at a range of temperatures. Not resistant to strong oxidising acids.	-50°C to 60°C
PVDF Polyvinylidene Fluoride	Outstanding mechanical, physical and chemical properties, very wide operating temperature range, high impact strength and thermal stability, excellent abrasion resistance, self extinguishing.	Resistant to most acids, alkalis, salts, halogens, alcohols and chlorinated hydrocarbons. Strong polarizing solvents such as ketones and esters, can cause the material to swell.	-40°C to 140°C
EPDM Ethylene-propylene Diene Monomer	A terpolymer elastomer with good abrasion and tear resistance, good resistance to a variety of acids and alkalis.	Resistant to many solutions of acids, alkalis, salts and organic compounds miscible with water. Good for use with caustic soda. Not recommended for petroleum oils, strong acids or strong alkalis.	-40°C to 90°C
FPM Fluorine Rubber	A fluoroelastimer with good abrasion and tear resistance, excellent resistance to a variety of acids, alkalis and petroleum oils.	Resistant to most solutions of acids, alkalis, salts and organic compounds. Good for use with petroleum oils, Not recommended for use with caustic soda.	-40°C to 150°C

RAS-B²

The simple solution to efficient heating

Unbalanced heating systems are a constant source of frustration for end users and call backs for heating installers. Noisy radiators, uneven heat distribution, excessive heating bills, and energy waste are all consequences of inefficient and wasteful systems.

With a 2-in-1 design that combines a thermostatic radiator valve and a hydronic balancing valve in a single product, the 'self balancing' RAS-B² from Danfoss gives you the ability to simply and cost-effectively solve these issues while increasing your customers' comfort and satisfaction.
